Fresh Check Day is a fair-like mental health promotion and suicide prevention event featuring interactive booths centered around mental health themes, peer-to-peer messaging, campus-wide support, food, giveaways, and raffle prizes. Participants receive a stamp card to collect stamps from each booth they visit, which can then be exchanged for raffle tickets.

He shared the impact of Fresh Check Day based on the 2024 post-event survey results: 86% of participants reported being more likely to ask for help, 90% became more aware of available resources, 86% felt more comfortable discussing mental health, and 87% felt more prepared to support a friend. Kurt emphasized the importance of community involvement in creating a welcoming and supportive environment and encouraged students and organizations to get involved in making this year's event another success.

Student Trustee: Daniel Currier opened his report with an April Fool's joke, jokingly announcing his resignation before reassuring everyone that he would be serving as Student Trustee until June 30th. He thanked those who participated in last week's Strategic Plan Open House and shared their feedback with Jen Scumaci and Mike Freeman, emphasizing the importance of the plan in guiding Westfield State over the next five years. He gave a shoutout to Raymond, Justin, Barney, Melissa, and Ethan for donating to the SGA Endowed Fund during Give a Hoot and, although disappointed more people didn't take part in his challenge, he reaffirmed his commitment to donate $100. He encouraged others to give through westfield.ma.edu/give. Later that evening, he would be speaking with a doctoral student from the University of Georgia who is researching student trustees in American higher education, and although the title was a bit complex, he was happy to help with the research. Daniel is scheduled to visit the Massachusetts State House on April 10th to advocate for increased funding to address the deferred maintenance crisis, with a tentative meeting and tour set up with Representative Kelly Pease and additional meetings being arranged by Vice President Phelps. The next Board of Trustees meeting is on April 22nd in the President's Boardroom at the Horace Mann Center and will likely include approval of faculty promotion and tenure. He encouraged students to attend in support of their professors. Lastly, he informed the Senate that he will be attending an Academic Achievement Awards ceremony next Tuesday and may not be present for the SGA meeting unless the event ends early. He invited anyone with questions to reach out.

President Joseph Bonilla transferred chair of the meeting to Vice President of Student Life Justin Wald for the remainder of the meeting due to feeling unwell.

Vice President of Student Life Report: Justin Wald reported that he received an email from Dr. Hearn regarding student parking violations. The data shows 12 students have between 20 and 55 tickets, 31 students have between 10 and 19, and 90 students have between 3 and 9 citations. According to Parking and Traffic Control Rules and Regulations, Article K, Section 1, Subsection A, any vehicle with three or more university-issued citations may be removed or towed, and the owner is responsible for the costs. Dr. Hearn expressed concern and hopes SGA can help address the issue, as the goal is to prevent students from incurring further fines while also ensuring that existing parking policies are followed. Josh Hetrick, the university's parking clerk, stated that to avoid towing, students must pay all outstanding citations, purchase a parking permit if they do not have one, and park in the correct lots assigned to their permit. The Executive Board discussed possible solutions including issuing e-tickets, educating students, and sending out a campus-wide email with detailed parking policies and towing regulations. Justin also reminded everyone that the OWL Celebration Hype-Up event is happening this Friday from 4 to 5 PM in the SGA room, hosted by him and Lorraine. However, attendance is limited to club leaders.

- Sophia Rebenciuc asked if he knows the percentage of students who have gotten tickets are commuters.

- Tony Cassiano explained that we don't have that information. However, it explained that the majority of the tickets are from Lammers Lot.
 - Sarah Harrington gave a point of information and explained about that when Joshua Hetrick came down to speak with us, he had that information
- Christopher Lannan gave a point of information and explained that it should be beyond us as student leaders to get parking tickets, further explaining that we know more stuff that the general campus doesn't know, and we should be following the rules more than others should be.
 - Justin Wald explained that he has gotten parking tickets, and one was very expensive due to not paying for it on time.
- Ethan Haynes asked to reiterate who has to pay for towing and storage if it has to happen.
 - Justin Wald explains that it is up to the student to pay for their car if it gets towed and stored.
- Christopher Lannan gave a point of information explaining that if you don't pay your outstanding parking tickets you might not be able to graduate.
- Ali Sutherland asked if the decal is digital.
 - Justin Wald explains that it is a digital decal that they will be able to see if you have it or not.
 - Tony Cassiano explains that you also get an email, regarding the decal.
- Nicholas Palumbo asked about when the event is this Friday.
 - Justin Wald explains that it is from 4-5 PM.

Dining Services Report: Cody Hoisington introduced himself and reported that the Dining Services Committee met last Friday for a short but productive meeting. The ice cream freezer is still on the way, and discussions are ongoing about the return of sushi in the DC. Justin and Jacob will be meeting with Melissa to finalize the logistics for when sushi might be offered. In retail updates, the Owl Café will be launching new coffee specials, and Ely Harvest will begin featuring a sub and smoothie of the month—starting with a chicken bacon ranch sub and a strawberry blush smoothie. Culture Pop is also being added to the Marketplace. Dining will continue hosting pop-up events throughout the month, with a focus on Sexual Assault Awareness Month and Fresh Check Day. Monthly dining agendas are now posted on napkin dispensers for better visibility, and Jacob will be sending an email to the Senate with the full schedule. On the dining operations side, deli waste management has significantly improved, overnight oats have been added with great success, and avocados are being scaled back due to cost and waste. A major highlight is the confirmation of a highly requested Boba Tea event, which will take place on April 17th.

- Evelyn Aiello asked where to sign up.
 - Sarah Harrington explains to reach out to her.

Academic Policies Committee: Ali Sutherland reported that the Academic Policies Committee (APC) held a meeting on March 22nd. The committee discussed the university's attendance policy and whether Westfield State should align with standards set by other state universities. Currently, the school does not have a fully up-to-date attendance policy, and the goal is to establish one that fairly supports students who may be representing the university or dealing with multiple absences due to chronic illness, medical reasons, or military training. The aim is to avoid students needing to constantly send medical notes to professors and instead create a more streamlined, equitable process. The committee also approved an increase in the required credits to graduate with Honors, moving from 18 to 24 credits to match other institutions within the Commonwealth Honors Program. Additionally, SGA needs to revise and resubmit survey questions to better capture student feedback, as the previous survey only received 70 responses out of a student population of over 4,000. Ali, along with Puru Sharma and Austin Morgan, encouraged students to email them with ideas for questions, suggesting basic demographic information such as commuter status, graduation year, and whether students work or have children.

- Daniel Currier asked about why $n = 63$. Then explains that it would need to be explained that it wouldn't be next year.
- Evelyn Aiello explains that it would be better to give an incentive.
- Cody Hoisington asked about with the drop of honors students and increase of credits will there be an increase in the number of classes.
 - Ali Sutherland explained that the short answer is yes, but it would be better to ask Dr. Sacket-Taylor.
 - Austin Morgan added and explained that there are going to be less students accepted into the honors program and there will be fewer classes.
 - Daniel Currier gave a point of information explaining some of the new requirements for the honors program, the discovery seminar, intro to CHP, complex issues course in honors, and additional credits in course by contract.
- Sarah Harrington mentions that they need to explain that there already is a common hour.
- Evelyn Aiello asked if there would be a cap now of when you can enter the honors program
 - Christopher Lannan gave a point of information saying that he joined the honors program his sophomore year
 - Evelyn Aiello further asked that it is a thing now, but will it still be the case with the increased number of honor credits.
 - Ali Sutherland explained that he will get the answer and reach out with it.

The event aimed to connect with commuters and encourage involvement, offering Rice Krispie treats as a conversation starter. The council is now planning future events, including a potential coffee hour where commuters can meet one another and grab a drink, and are in discussions to collaborate with CAB during their spring event. The council has also started decorating the commuter lounge bulletin board and is committed to keeping it colorful, engaging, and up to date with activities and events. While meetings were initially held weekly, the council has shifted to biweekly meetings with continued discussion taking place via Microsoft Teams in between. The next scheduled meeting will be on April 15th.

Senior Class Report: William Connor thanked everyone who helped work the 50 Days Toast last Thursday, expressing appreciation for their support and noting that it hopefully gave underclassmen ideas for future events. He also thanked the seniors who attended, highlighting that their participation is what makes these events meaningful. Thanks to their involvement, there is now a new graduation sign to walk in with, as well as to use at future reunions—special thanks to Ryan for that. He reminded everyone about the upcoming Foxwoods trip this Friday, with buses leaving from in front of Scanlon at 5 PM and encouraged sign-ups due to limited seating. The final Senior Send-Off will take place on Friday, May 2nd on campus, with more details to come next week, but he did reveal that all attendees will receive a high-quality Westy Sherpa blanket. He also reminded seniors that caps and gowns are now available at the bookstore and that lawn sign sales are open until April 11th.
